(Cut along this line)

My name and address are correct as shown on the reverse side of this order form.

Dr. Kraus

needs no introduction. His work with chrysanthemums made him a reputation of enviable proportions before he started working with Daylilies 20 years ago at Chicago University.

He retired from active faculty work in Chicago in 1949 and came to Oregon State College at Corvallis to employ his talents toward the improvement of not alone Daylilies, but of Azaleas, Clematis and other plants.

This list of Daylilies, while not embracing all the varieties that Dr. Kraus has developed, is as comprehensive as our present stocks will allow. Additions will be made as conditions permit.

RUTH LEHMAN 18.50

Without doubt one of the finest daylilies. Adjectives fail completely to convey the delicate charm of this porcelain, wide petaled melon pink self. The large flowers are of heavy substance. Branching is most elegant. We expect to see it do a steady and rapid climb on the popularity polls. Definitely out of the ordinary. 36 inch. Midseason.

SHIMMER 1.50

Buttercup yellow with a sheen that glistens deep into the small chartreuse throat. 30 inch. Midseason.

SIGNAL 2.00

Brilliant vermilion with its brilliant flame at the throat. 36 inch. Early Midseason.

SILENT NIGHT 6.00

Deep, deep red with substantial sheen. The wide petals are gracefully pinched and delicately recurved. Plant close to one of the very light yellows for a delightful contrast. 30 inch. Midseason.

SIoux 1.50

Brilliant red color. Free blooming. 30 inch. Midseason.

SOLEDAD 6.00

Much in demand. Being slow to increase this massive sunshine yellow self. The strong scapes are heavily branched and the petals have good substance. 36 inch. Early Midseason.

SPARKS 1.50

Small red flowers. The foliage and scapes are low enough to lend themselves to edge planting. 30 inch. Early Midseason.

SPENCER FULLER 1.00

Large, ruffled and reflexed flower of suffused red copper color. 40 inch. Midseason.

SUNNY MORN 1.00

Light yellow self. 34 inch. Late Midseason.

Mrs. David Hall

The Daylily

is summer flowering and is conditioned by nature for late summer or early fall transplanting, immediately following the blooming. It is true that clumps may be moved at any time the ground is not frozen, but to subject a clump to the shock of division at any season and anticipate top performance is expecting too much. This is the reason our shipping is limited to the early fall months.

Have the soil deeply spaded and well mixed with humus or fertilizer. Make a mound in the hole and spread the roots over the mound and press firmly so that the crown of the plant is about one inch below the level of the bed. Water well and fill. Keep moist until the roots are established. The only other time that daylilies require water is just before and during bloom. In colder areas apply a porous mulch after the ground is frozen to prevent alternate thawing and freezing which has a tendency to force the plant from the earth.
